This University covers what ICRMA members should know about Cyber Risk and Prevention.

This month's university session will focus on the purpose of cyber prevention to help prevent cyberattacks, data breaches and identity theft and can aid in risk management. When an organization has a strong sense of network security and an effective incident response plan, it is better able to prevent and mitigate cyber-attacks.

Training topics:

- Cyber Market Trends
- Cyber Trends as they relate to municipalities
- How AI is influencing the cyber landscape
- Lessons learned from cyber attacks
- Risk management best practices
- Claims handling and process

Who should attend: All Directors, Managers, Supervisors, Risk Managers, IT staff, City Attorneys, and people who work in a data/IT field.

About the Speakers:

Matt Sherman, TMHCC, Senior Vice President, Reinsurance & Programs

Matt joined TMHCC in 2016 and oversees the development of cyber and specialty insurance solutions for carriers and risk bearers across a myriad of risk classes. Prior to his tenure at Tokio Marine HCC, Mr. Sherman served as President of Cardigan Specialty, a national Managing General Agency with various programs in the commercial automobile, professional, and casualty lines, trading over $50 million annually in premium. He also served as Chief Operating Officer for a 50 state, admitted carrier from 2008-2015.

Alex Bovicelli, TMHCC, Senior Director, Threat Intelligence

Alex is a Cyber Threat Intelligence leader with extensive experience building intelligence programs that reduce organizational risk through innovation and strategic partnerships. He has worked closely with public-sector organizations to improve information sharing and enhance the security of critical infrastructure. As Senior Director of Cyber Threat Intelligence at Tokio Marine HCC, he leads a team that delivers complimentary Attack Surface Monitoring (ASM) services to thousands of insureds, aiming to lower the frequency of ransomware attacks.
